About National Ilan University

National Ilan University (NIU) started as Taiwan Provincial Ilan School of Agriculture & Forestry in 1926. Since then, NIU has maintained its distinguished status in academic as well as in research fields. Currently NIU is home to the College of Bioresources, College of Engineering, College of Electrical Engineering & Computer Science and the College of Humanities and Management.

National Ilan University (NIU) is located in the heart of Yilan City which is less than an hour drive from Taipei. NIU has its own forest land in Jiaoxi for experimental use, forestation and ecological research. NIU has its campus at Wujie that focus on professional animal research and a campus near Yilan Scientific Park.

NIU President Po-Ching Wu, Ph.D

Prof. Dr. Po-Ching Wu was elected as the 5th NIU President by the NIU President Election Committee in July 2016 and was on board from August 2016. Received his PHD degree in Food Engineering at University of Massachusetts USA, President Dr. Po-Ching Wu is also the Professor from Department of Biomechatronic Engineering at NIU.

President Dr. Po-Ching Wu believes that University not only plays the role as education and academia research, it should also serve its social responsibility. In his tenure of office, President Dr. Po-Ching Wu will focus on five governing dimensions: (1) Actively seek resources for NIU development (2) Execute excellent education to lift students' professional skills (3) Enhance educational facilities to support high quality teaching (4) Create connection and contribution to local community, and (5) Improve students' international mobility.

Beauty of Yilan

Located in the North-Eastern part of Taiwan, Yilan has a very unique landscape. To the east of Yilan is the Pacific Ocean, to the west stands the Hsuehshan Mountain Range. Yilan is well-known for its dedication towards environmental care and protection. In Taiwan, when talking about Yilan, people always say it is the place with "beautiful mountain, pure water, and rich culture". NIU encourages International Students to explore Yilan during their leisure time, which will definitely become memorable experience.
